“I.M. Terrell High School: How an African-American High School Changed the Course of Music History”

November 18, 2017

Van Cliburn may be the most famous classical musician associated with Fort Worth, but the city is also the hometown of some of the best-known popular musical performers in the world. And Tom Reynolds knows them all.

Reynolds, a noted local musician himself and businessman will speak on Saturday, November 18, about the unique contributions that I.M. Terrell High School musicians have made to popular music.

Reynolds will discuss I.M. Terrell performers who gained fame in and influenced musical genres as varied as ragtime, western swing, rhythm and blues, rock and roll, and jazz.

The presentation begins at 10 a.m. in the Billy W. Sills Center for Archives.

Coffee and nibbles will be served at 9:30 a.m.

Saturday morning, November 18, 2017 ♦ 10:00 to 12:00
