“A Vision: The Trinity River Project”

February 23, 2019

The Trinity River Project has been a vision in Fort Worth for decades. The vision was encouraged by community volunteers in the 1980s, developed by urban designers and consultants in the 1990s, and finally adopted by the City Council in 2003. You’ve heard about on the news. You may have attended events at the Panther Island Pavilion. But how much do you know about the vision; how the vision developed and grew? What the plan is for the future?

Matt Oliver, Director of Communications, Trinity River Project, is the featured speaker on the Billy W. Sills Lecture Series on February 23. He will be relating the vision and the history for the future of the Trinity River Project.

Join us February 23, for a morning of learning, fun, and fellowship.
