War of 1812 Records

The War of 1812 (or as some thought of--our 2nd War for Independence) was one of the most widely participated in, but least acknowledged American wars. It also was one of our shortest wars, yet created a mountain of records—and records that left behind some important and interesting information about your ancestors. Learn about this war and where to find those records.

Debbie Pearson is a retired school teacher of 37 years. She did her undergraduate work at Stephen F. Austin and her Master's in Education at TCU. She developed her love of genealogy from her aunt who insisted she travel back to Tennessee, Arkansas, Georgia, Alabama, North & South Carolina, Virginia, Pennsylvania, Oklahoma, Indiana, and Illinois to see where their ancestors lived and to study locally. She spent many hours in courthouses and libraries and eventually refined her research into memberships in DAR, NSUSD 1812, United Daughters of the Confederacy, and Daughters of the Republic of Texas. Her Texas roots run back to 1839 in Shelby county making her a 5th generation Texan. She also serves currently in Fort Worth Genealogical Society as Newsletter editor and Programs Director.
